

Everything changes, of course, if the swing states submit competing slates of electors pursuant to state law.